

Abstract

The present invention relates to liquid formulations of human growth hormone (hGH, somatropin) which are storage stable, show reduced or no crystallization on storage and are suitable for administration to the human or animal body. More particularly, the invention relates to liquid formulations of human growth hormone which are stable and exhibit minimal or no crystallization when stored at least for a time at temperatures above refrigeration temperatures.